Meeting notes by Steve Tarr

We didn't have a quorum at the meeting tonight, so couldn't take any official action on launch dates for next year. Here's a list of weekend dates through the summer with proposed launch dates and some of the conflicts I know about right now. These have already been discussed by some of the members, but we need to open this up for comments before we finalize the calendar. I hope we can do that at or before the November meeting.

Jack Canyon asked (via email) if we could change the August launch to include both research and commercial days. Others have asked about trying to hold a FAR-101 launch (e.g. at North Plains) in August. There was a little bit of discussion at the meeting about various options to hold one research and one commercial launch at Brothers in August, or make a four-day event with some mix of research and commercial days. Nothing was decided.

Robert Krausert asked (again via email) if there was interest in holding a "Northwest BALLS" event at Brothers in August. Discussion at the meeting was mostly about how that might or might not be any different than what we're already doing with Desert EX -- the consensus seemed to be that it was primarily a matter of publicity. Or is there something more to the idea?
